Naturally Intoxicating

Welcome to the Lake Chelan Wine Valley, the most “naturally intoxicating” wine destination in America. Our wines are deep and complex, just like the breath-taking lake that is in the heart of this scenic viticulture center.

The glacially-carved soils give our grapes unique character and intensity. The size and depth of our lake fundamentally change the seasons here, extending the harvest and drawing out late-summer sugars in our grapes.

©Richard Duval Images

Some say our most precious resource, however, is our world-class winemakers who are drawn to these conditions and apply their craft to transform nature's gifts into the magic in your glass. Engaging and accessible, chances are you'll talk to more than one on your next wine adventure here.

One taste and we know you'll agree:
Lake Chelan Wine Valley is naturally intoxicating.

Local Attractions

In addition to wineries, the South Shore is home to the State Park, Bear Mountain Golf Course, parasailing excursions, boat and watercraft rentals, a brand new marina, and an exciting water park.

South Shore

Visitors who arrive at the Lake Chelan Wine Valley from Route 97A, are awestruck by the jaw dropping view of deep blue Lake Chelan. The lake is lined by vineyards as far as the eye can see. This breathtaking entrance to the Lake Chelan Wine Valley is home to the South Shore winery district, its estate wineries, and tasting rooms. The South Shore offers unique tasting experiences, including an Italian style villa, a French country chateau, a Champagne cave, and even a llama farm. Several South Shore wineries have restaurants and outdoor seating with majestic lake views.

5 Tunnel Hill Winery

Michelle Fanton, Winemaker | Denny Evans, Winemaker

Founded by the Evans family, Tunnel Hill makes its home in a historic cottage, built in 1937 of stones from the Knapp's Hill Tunnel excavation. Our oldest Pinot Noir block dates back to 20 years. Our youngest Malbec block was planted in 2013. In between, we have learned a lot about the land, the wine it creates, and our own roles in the middle. We know that building a great wine and a great winery are not unlike. Both require attention to detail, a sense of daring, and tenacious spirit. We hope you will visit and find that spirit in our Estate grown Pinot Noir, Syrah, Malbec, Viognier and Riesling.

It all started in Italy in 2002, when Donna and Rob Mellison took an incredible trip to a villa and winery in the heart of Tuscany. The Mellisons enjoyed high quality wine and food pairings, elegant surroundings, and conscientious and sincere hosting. After the trip they both agreed: The beauty of Lake Chelan deserves the same. Donna and Rob collaborate together as joint winemakers. Mellisoni also now has an Electric Fuel Station (HiAmp 2 Version).
